Hours from Divorce, Ahmed and Sara managed to overcome their financial conflicts and become friends again in just 2 weeks.

Executive Summary

Sara was ready to leave the marriage with her two children because she could no longer handle the constant fighting over their finances. Ahmed realized he needed to act quickly and booked an emergency relationship rescue session and then they joined the 10 week online group program. In the relationship rescue session we reached a compromise both were happy with. Then together alone step by step they focused on putting the life, passion and love back into their relationship implementing the tools given each week.

Challenges

Ahmed and Sara were constantly fighting over finances, Sara couldn't stand the way Ahmed was so controlling with money, especially when they it was unnecessary. Ahmed had a good job and they weren't big spenders.

Sara felt that Ahmed was too controlling... "Nicola he is always complaining about me spending anything and avoids trying to spend anything. I hate it, it is not how I was raised." Ahmed's "tightness" annoyed and embarrassed and her respect for him had dwindled over the years. She worked too and every bit of her money went on the family, why couldn't he appreciate this and be more giving.

Ahmed liked to keep his financial affairs under tight control. His parent's didn't have much money growing up and saving as much money as possible is important to him.

They had tried to talk about these differences and got nowhere. They even tried marriage counseling and it made matters worse. After each session, they left feeling more depressed, frustrated and thinking that their situation was hopeless.

The marriage counselor they saw offered them communication and listening techniques, but more talking made them withdraw further.

So Sara gave up and decided to leave Ahmed.

Faced with the prospect of losing his family, Ahmed acknowledged that he needed to change and got in touch. First we booked an emergency private strategy session and then they joined the 10 week Save My Marriage - Private Online Program. Ahmed wanted to learn the skills to fix the marriage problems together with his wife alone.

How I Helped

During the emergency strategy session Ahmed could see for the first time how his actions were affecting Sara and the marriage. Rather than empty promises of "I'll change" or "I'll give you more money" we agreed on a set figure where anything left over Sara got to keep. In return Sara agreed that she would not ask for more unless an emergency, would stop being critical of Ahmed, appreciate him. As well as not withhold sex, which she had been doing for some time.

Results

The more they gave to each other the closer they become. During the online save my marriage group program I run they learned what their top 5 relationship desires were from a list of 15. As soon as they started taking action to rebuild the respect, trust and love they started to see each other in a different light. They emailed me to say that after implementing the steps in the first 2 weeks changes were happening. As a result of daily habits that made each other feel appreciated.

Client Testimonials

"I was skeptical to even try marriage counseling again after it failed the first time and we felt worse not better. Plus I've been brought up to believe that you should always keep your problems to yourself and handle them on your own. But I was not willing to let Sara and my children leave, you have to fight for what you want and be willing to change. In just one session we had agreed a way forward and then could start the online program and work on the relationship together. As soon as we started implementing the steps - we start enjoying being around each other again. This was a big change from before" Ahmed

"I never thought it was possible for Ahmed to change but Nicola's approach was really effective, she took us away from the fighting to explore the impact it was having on our life, relationship and self esteem. Seeing Ahmed's willingness to change and do the 10week online program with me made a huge difference. I was surprised at how quickly my respect, love and admiration for him changed. I am pleased to say the tension has gone, we no longer argue over money all the time. We now focus on spending time together and with our beautiful children - like a real family should do." Sara
